Glenn Doss scored four touchdowns and Bascomb Almond two as the Appomattox Raiders beat the Altavista Colonels 41-0 last Friday night in the last Seminole District football game of the season for both teams. The win enabled the Raiders to finish the season 5-4 in the district and 5-5 overall.

The Raiders fumbled the ball the first time they had it and Altavista recovered, but on the next play Warren Coleman recovered a Colonel fumble on the Appomattox 45. A couple of plays later Glenn Doss went up the middle on a 46 yard run for the score and he also kicked the point after with 5:35 left in the quarter for a 7-0 lead. Late in the first quarter the Raider defense held the Colonels on their 36 yard line. The Raiders moved the ball to the 11 in five plays as the quarter ended. On the first play of the second quarter Doss scored from 11 yards out with 11:55 left in the half and it was 13-0 as the kick missed.

The Raiders kicked off and after a couple of plays the Raiders caused another fumble, this time James Hunter recovered on the Colonel 18. Bascomb Almond then scored two plays later for the Raiders on an eight yard run with 10:06 left in the half and Tommy Bryant added the extra point and Appomattox carried a 20-0 lead in at the half.

In the third quarter, the Raiders scored through the air as Mac Weaver flipped to Glenn Doss on a well run screen pass that covered 32 yards for 27-0 lead as Bryant again kicked the extra point with 7:33 left in that quarter. The Raiders started at their own 43 and the drive took nine plays. Ricky Wingfield threw a beautiful block on the 12 yard line that took the last Colonel down that had a chance to get Doss on the run.

Altavista took the kick-off and fumbled on the next play and Ricky Burge recovered for the Raiders on the Altavista 33. Four plays later with 5:11 left in the quarter Doss scored his fourth TD of the night on a three yard run and Bryant kicked to make it 34-0.

The last Raider score was set up a pass interception by Keith Coleman. Altavista was on the march and inside the Raider 20 when Coleman picked off the Colonel pass on the one yard line. He returned it 60 yds. to the Altavista 39 before being knocked out of bounds. Appomattox the drove and scored early into the fourth quarter with 11:22 left in the game as Almond got his second TD of the night and Bryant kicked his fourth straight extra point to make it 41-0. The rest of the game the ball changed hands and the Raiders let everyman play. Dillard Reynolds and Gordon Ford both got interceptions late in the game for Appomattox on defense.

Doss was the big man for the Raiders rushing as he gained 201 yards on 23 carries caught three passes from Weaver for 79 yards and his four TD's and extra point gave him 25 for the night. Almond had 40 yards rushing to go with his two touchdowns.

The defense was led by Dickie Kelso with seven tackles and two assists and Warren Coleman with five tackles and two assists.

Of Interest To Hog Producers

There are at least two exciting interests among hog producers.

1. With protein prices soaring, there is renewed interest in corn varieties that will improve the quality of protein and possibly feed efficiency.

2. New technology shows that grain can be stored at high moisture by adding a preservative.

This year two Appomattox hog producers have chemically stored high moisture corn. John Wilson treated 3200 bushels and Monroe Dyess 600. They used a chemical called "Chem-Stor."

In picture number 1 Wilson has stored this corn on a concrete slab that was first covered with a sheet of polyethlene.

Picture 2 shows a 2000 bushel storage unit that Wilson has constructed from ½ inch plyboard and farm timber.

The applicator that costs each piece of grain with the preservative is shown in picture 3. This piece of equipment was available as rental equipment this year. The applicator regulates the amount of preservative depending upon the amount of moisture in the grain.

This method of storage eliminates the need of metal bins and fuel for drying. With all costs rising sharply, cost reductions are important considerations for farm managers.

Cost of chemically treating corn is about the same as drying costs. This year costs including rental of applicator will run about 22c per bushel.

Wilson planted a unit of Pioneer L3369 last spring. This is a high lysine corn. He reports a yield of 93 bushels per acre.

High lysine corn is a change in the quality of protein, not an increase in the quantity of protein. Since regular corn is relatively low in lysine, an increase of this essential amino acid is important to hogmen.

There is a great deal of variation between "high lysine" corn varieties. Generally the lysine is doubled in the high lysine varieties.

High lysine varieties are often higher in moisture and dry slower than other hybrids of the same maturity group. The kernal texture will be softer and more easily damaged. There also appears to be more ear rots and insect damage on high lysine varieties. Wilson noted that shuck coverage was not as good and he experienced some bird damage.

Another corn that has received publicity this year is waxy corn. Waxy corn has been grown for years and used in industrial foods and glues. A recent feeding trial with cattle in Illinois showed a 10% greater daily gain and a 6% greater feed efficiency when waxy corn was fed in comparison to regular corn.

Additional feed tests are being designed to see if the Illinois work can be repeated. Some of the waxy hybrids grown in Virginia this year showed considerable northern corn leaf blight.

In tests at the Holland Station four high lysine varieties yielded at least 120 bushels, the top being 148 bushels per acre.

Waxy corn at the same station also had four varieties with 120 or more bushels per acre and the top variety had 152 bushels per acre.

A farm test in Dinwiddie County had two high lysine varieties over 100 bushels and five waxy varieties over 100 bushels per acre.

This trip was arranged as a part of the emphasis on career educatin in conjunction with National Career Guidance Week, November 11 - 17, by the Guidance Department at Appomattox County High School.

FBLA Class Tours Fidelity In Lynchburg

Fidelity National Bank recently gave a Business Class at Appomattox High School some practical experience in office work when it commissioned the class to fold 64,000 letters for a new service the bank is initiating. The new service will consist of group travel programs with world wide destinations for Fidelity customers.

Sixty-four thousand letters average out to approximately 2,285 letters per student, and the class of 28 finished the project in record time. In appreciation of the students' effort, Fidelity invited them to the new headquarters building for a tour and for lunch at the Piedmont Club.

The students were accompanied by Mrs. Celia Beamer, teacher of the Business Class, Mrs. Pauline DePew and Mrs. Harriet James, guidance counselors at the high school.
